‘THE GEORGIAN VISITOR’

‘A Vignette of Garden Visiting in the Eighteenth Century’

By RICHARD WHEELER

Former National Specialist in Garden History for the National Trust.

After 43 years with the National Trust and leading many major garden restorations, including Erddig and Chirk in North Wales, Stowe, Chastleton and West Wycombe, in England and Castle Ward in Northern Ireland, Richard Wheeler is now running his garden history consultancy. He advises on practical garden restoration and runs informal tutorials for the gardeners and garden restorers of the future. He lectures and writes regularly on the history and iconology of gardens and their understanding and restoration.
